

Mr. Ciprian Dobre

Vice-Rector at National University of Science and Technology (UNST), part of the Politehnica University of Bucharest (UPB)

Ciprian Dobre has been serving as Vice-Rector of the National University of Science and Technology (UNST), part of the Politehnica University of Bucharest (UPB), since October 2008, playing a key role in coordinating the academic and strategic activities of the institution.

With extensive experience in education and research, Mr. Dobre is committed to promoting academic excellence and fostering innovation in science and technology.

A graduate of the Politehnica University of Bucharest, he holds a PhD in Computer Science. He represents UPB as a member of the European Open Science Cloud (EOSC) and CESAER (the association of leading science and technology universities in Europe). He also serves as a scientific evaluator for the European Commission and national funding agencies in various countries including the Netherlands, Italy, Latvia, and Poland.

Mr. Dobre is a Senior Researcher at ICI – the National Institute for Research and Development in Informatics. He is also the Manager of SmartRDI (<http://smartrdi.net>), a Romanian SME acting as a research and innovation hub, with a strong focus on mobile computing and IoT technologies.